

When someone becomes incapacitated and did not do any planning before becoming ill, family members or other loved ones, may need the court assistance to obtain authority to handle the ill persons personal, health and financial affairs. This court process is called guardianship. We advise and assist individuals who are seeking guardianship of a loved one and assist in complying with the reporting requirements imposed upon a guardian.