

While many times illness and dementia issues regarding a loved one can pull a family together, it can also pull a family apart. Relationships may be strained over concerns pertaining to a sudden change in the ill relative's will or the spending of her assets. Our firm can assist with representation in will and trust contests, homestead litigation, elective share litigation, and other disputes regarding the management of the affairs of the elderly or disabled, including exploitation of a vulnerable adult.